PROJECT

New Porsche Dealership

New Porsche Dealership

Feilden+Mawson were appointed architect, lead consultant and contract administrator for the design and development of the Porsche Centre, Norwich. Emphasis is on horizontal display, relating to its juxtaposition with the A47 southern bypass.

The design utilises an existing storage facility, capitalising on it to expand the floor area and inserting a new steel framed floor supported on 9m piles. Parts of the existing substructure have been over-clad with a rain screen whilst other new build areas utilise the most thermally efficient composite cladding panels available. The showroom glazing is silicon butt jointed to allow a frameless visual aperture across the façade.
