New Distribution & Call Centre

New Distribution and Call Centre

Tobar Toys commissioned a packing and distribution centre to unify and enable business growth within a purpose-built facility. The brief included providing a design that gave the client an efficient plan whilst delivering crisp architecture to act as a corporate face for the growing business. This was achieved by using coloured glazing that reflects the colours used within the company's logo, literature and website.

The key design concept is to provide a simply detailed box for the warehouse that acts as a backdrop to the office element, which draws attention by using colour and detail reminiscent of the products that the company sells.

Feilden+Mawson built upon previous experience to provide a fast track design and build programme to deliver the scheme within the first quarter of 2007. Working to this programme means that the client will have a building commissioned and fully working in time to meet their projected growth targets.
